Reno Trip Information

Prospects players travel for one weekend to live like a college athlete. Players room together, travel together, eat together, practice on the road and compete in tournament play. This is one of the highlights of the summer and a weekend the players will never forget!

The Experience: The Reno training experience is designed to prepare and show players what life is like as a college athlete. However, this weekend is so much more than that. Players are expected to put baseball and training first. Growth as a team and as a player, both physically and mentally, should be evident by the end of the week. Players' time will be spent between team meals, games, training opportunities and team bonding experiences. This is a positive week of baseball and camaraderie and we expect all players to attend.

Player Expectations: Players are expected to represent Prospects Baseball well, especially when we are on the road. If a player acts disrespectful or defiant to coaches and/or parent drivers or chooses to break curfew, steal or vandalize property, or harm another player, he will be asked to leave and the player's parents will be expected to provide transportation from the hotel to their home.

Supervision: Players will be under the supervision of coaches and parent chaperones during the week. Players will be able to reach a coach at a designated location at all times when the team is back at the hotel. Players will have room checks each evening and lights out at a reasonable hour. We are here to play baseball and have fun so we expect all players to abide by program expectations and to be accounted for at all times.

Transportation: We rely on parent volunteers who are attending the tournament to help get players from place to place. We also ask that a $30 donation is given for gas to those parents who have offered to drive players for the week. If you are attending the tournament you may drive your player from place to place.
